

NOTES FROM

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23, 1935.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

Telephone reports show that Montpelier people are better "gadders" than Barre people. The honor is cheerfully relinquished.

Big Bill's visit to New Haven was distinctly declared to be a non-political event, but the "Booah, Booah" boys thought otherwise.

Joseph H. Dunbar, Socialist candidate for governor of Vermont, is the author of a book on mathematics, but he probably can't figure out his own election.

Ex-Mayor Burke of Burlington appears to be stronger outside his own Democratic "balliwick" than he is inside. Another case, perhaps, of familiarity breeding contempt.

A WELCOME AND AN INVITATION.

We extend a welcome to the delegates of the state prohibition convention who are to-day met in Barre to nominate a state ticket to be voted for at the fall elections. And we invite them to take a look about this no-license town and have a first-hand view of conditions as they are.

There is not absolute restraint of the sale of liquor as a beverage; we do not think it would be possible in a community of 12,000 people, drawn from all corners of the earth as well as from the native stock and accustomed to varying methods of dealing with the drink question, to completely stop the sale and use of liquor as a beverage. But we do invite them to make comparisons of the Barre under prohibition with the Barre under local option and to ask the citizens of all shades of belief their candid opinion regarding the comparison. We do not expect that their deep-rooted convictions would be turned up "in toto" at the one object lesson, but we would like to have them understand that we believe what we say when we make the assertion that conditions now are far and away better than they were ten years ago. Barre's population has increased very materially in that time, thus making the problem much harder to solve.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

One of the notable paragraphs in President Busham's baccalaureate sermon to the class of 1935 of the university of Vermont was this:

"To simplify human life by foregoing its higher reaches—to be content with what comes easily and can be lost without much regret—not to try very hard—this is to live not a human life but a sub-human life. The hermit to avoid gluttony reduces nourishment to roots and water with a result which is not temperance but a bloodless existence. In a fit of morose virtue we cut off art and music, and sports and laughter and all the embellishments of life, and think to make life truer by making it narrow, and meagre, and dull—in other words less vital. It is a pleasant vacation relief to wear homespun and go barefoot, but for a permanent, it would be simply a remuneration of the good things which the new times have brought to us."

By that and by similar lines, President Busham endeavored to stay the somewhat rising tide of faddism, or a surrender to the life which follows the course of least resistance, by pointing out the cowardices of such a move. The heading of the so-called "simple life" by the strong, vigorous, alert man, simply because it offers a life of relief from the activities of the period, is a pitiful surrender, he declared; the "simple life" is for those weaklings who have not the powers to stand and battle against the world, not for a real man.

BEING UNGENEROUS.

The items mentioned by The Times, ungenerously enough too, had also their part in the result, but The Herald believes that better organization, impossible without funds, was what gives Prouty his 400-odd delegates, credited to him exclusively by The Herald on the morning following the caucuses—Rutland Herald.

The Times does not understand your meaning—the words "ungenerously enough." If you mean that it was ungenerous for this paper not to support Stanton when he was a Washington county man, you mistake the position which The Times takes in picking candidates; we do not pick them on propaganda lines. We pick them rather on their respective fitness for the place.

As a matter of fact, we went over into Rutland county and selected the man whom The Herald, herring prejudices, would be the first to support for governor—Fletcher D. Procter—knowing, as we know, that he was head, shoulders and all above either of the avowed candidates for the place. He was a Rutland county man, yet The Herald did not support him, but instead ignored him, directly damned Prouty and indirectly damned Stanton—and had no candidate, as it now admits. If we were ungenerous not to support Stanton, does not The Herald lay itself liable to the same allegation?

The only other interpretation of the words "ungenerously enough," used by the contemporary in characterizing our reference to the causes of Stanton's apparent defeat, is that it refers to the presentation of those reasons; which it is a specious complaint at best. Has it come to the point where a newspaper must cloak its candid opinions, stated in a fair manner, just to merit the term generous? How long since a newspaper must gloss over absolute facts in a matter of so great public concern as the gubernatorial nomination? We hold that it is the province of the newspaper to dissect the causes of the success or failure of a political campaign, just as much as it is its province to tell in the news columns the fact that somebody won and somebody lost, as we are pleased to note by The Herald's own statement that it did. Come, neighbor, let's be candid even if it does hit one's own county man.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Prejudice.

Vermont is for the first time to have a full socialist ticket in the field at the September election, and a noteworthy fact about it is that all the names thereon are English or Yankee. The nominee for governor, Joseph H. Dunbar of North Hartland, is a mathematician whose arithmetics are said to be used in the public schools of the state. Some people up that way will now be raising the question whether the Dunbar arithmetics has not become a dangerous book to leave in the hands of children.—Springfield Republican.

LET THERE BE LESS NOISE.

Complaint of Church-goer at the Presbyterian Church Services.

Editor, Barre Times: The press of the country is now regarded as the leading instrument of conveying information to all readers. The writer would deem it a favor to learn who is responsible for keeping quiet and decorum around our city buildings, churches, etc., on Sunday.

For example, take last Sunday forenoon service at the Presbyterian church. There was a trip-bumper started upon an automobile which appeared needed repairs or to be taken to the junk heap, judging by the hammering required under its spreading roof before it would move. Then it is a common occurrence during the service and not on the public street either Sunday evenings as well as week days that there will be a host of boys and girls keeping up a screaming and yelling in the next lot; and for a change someone more obliging will step inside the door (if no one is on guard) and give vent to a yell that would shame an Indian war-whoop.

The police have been spoken to, but it seems it is now of their business "nothing results." Let a service or so be held in the same basement of this Presbyterian church and there's an army of faces at all the windows with an occasional tin can dropped. To ask them to go away, which is sometimes compulsory in order to hear yourself speak or anyone else, is like a lot of lies; you may give them a motion to leave their present quarters, but all the same they will not stay away; nor will a fly from honey or otherwise.

Now, sir, I trust you can let me know through your paper who is the proper authority to appeal to, mayor, police commissioners, chief of police or board of aldermen. Yours truly,

Church-goer.

MARSHFIELD.

The musicale given by Mrs. Bertha Pickin's pupils was a great success. Much credit due both teacher and pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bond will move their household effects to the home of their brother, Mr. Cahill, in Plainfield, and will occupy one part of that house after July 4th.

Mrs. Elsie Lamberton is stopping in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Case, in Chelsea, for a few weeks. People in this town will be glad to know of this.

The annual lawn party and ice cream social at James Boudry's will occur next Friday evening, June 28th. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Wyman and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Tibbets were in Greensboro over Sunday, visiting their uncle, Frank Felix.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Brown returned last week Monday from Topsham, where they had been for about two months, to care for their only daughter, Mrs. Head, who is very ill. Mrs. Brown is residing in her home here, with nervous breakdown, and other complications. Her friends hope she may recover soon.

Mrs. Louise Sumner Dennis, widow of the late George C. Dennis, died very suddenly Monday evening at 10 o'clock, after a few days' illness of Bright's disease, in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Powers. The funeral will be at the house Wednesday at 11 o'clock, Rev. F. E. Currier officiating.

The examination for high school scholars will occur Thursday and Friday, June 28th and 29th, at Marshfield village school house.

All pupils wishing free tuition at a high school this fall can take the examination next Thursday and Friday, June 28 and 29th, at the school house hall, Anna L. Burnham, Supt.

The school board have arranged with Mason S. Stone, state superintendent of education, to speak to the citizens of the town on the subject of a central graded school in Marshfield. Mr. Stone is anxious to meet the citizens and it is hoped that they will make a special effort to be present at the meeting next Thursday, June 28th, at 8 p. m., in Folson's hall. There will be an interesting program by the children of the various schools. Come and encourage the children and aid in promoting the educational interests of the town.

EAST BARRE.

The Death of David Salter, an Aged Resident of the Place.

The death of David Salter occurred at about noon, at the home of R. B. Partridge, where he had been staying for quite a long time. Mr. Salter was born December 4, 1826, being nearly 88 years of age. His wife died February 20, 1925. He leaves four sons, John S. and Harry N., both of Providence, R. I., W. C. of Randolph Center, and Leon L. Salter of Montpelier; also two daughters, Mrs. Fred O'Brien of Chicago and Mrs. Carl Huse of South Barre. Two daughters, Helen and Allen were buried several years ago. He was an many years a resident of South Barre. The funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1 p. m., from the house, and the interment will be in Elmwood cemetery, beside his wife's body.

Mrs. George Taylor is visiting friends in the city today.

George Rock has purchased the home formerly occupied by J. P. Woodworth, and Fred Leonard, jr., will move to the tenement vacated by Charles Abbott, or he expects to.

Charles Waterman has just sold his fine yoke of oxen to Charles Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchins and Leon, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hutchins and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Moores have just returned from a fishing trip to Highgate. Ask for stories.

Miss Mamie Hagan was home over Sunday, accompanied by friends.

Mrs. H. E. Sargent has an aunt visiting her for the present.

Nat. Boody arrived in town on Monday night from the Mary Fletcher hospital, where he has been for treatment. He seems much better.

Major H. B. Hersey of the department of agriculture, with headquarters at Milwaukee, Wis., was in Burlington Friday and inspected officially the local United States weather station. Major Hersey was accompanied by N. L. Sheldon of Boston. Major Hersey has been closely associated with Walter Wellman in the latter's aeronautic experiments in search of the North Pole. Both Major Hersey and Mr. Sheldon are graduates of New York university, Northfield, and have just attended commencement exercises at their alma mater.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Discontent.

Oh, all my pleasant, peaceful joys Are now replaced by woes; I cannot love the daffodil Since I have smelled the rose.

Where once perfection I beheld, Alas, defects I mark; I cannot love the bobolink Since I have heard the lark.

I was contented all that day, But now I ever pine; I cannot love the draught of milk Since I have tasted wine.

No more I'd hide in Acready, I weary of the scene; I cannot love the shepherdess Since I have seen the queen.

The S. B. G.

Maybe have we heard of the maiden sweet, Commonly known as ye graduate, Tripping along on her Senior feet, Leaving her alma mater's gate. Sweet girl grad! Need have no doubt All this is sung of you makes me glad.

But it is this that I'm worried about; Where, oh, where, is the sweet boy grad?

Colleges everywhere over the land—Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, Yale. Nothing but callus on the stand! What has become of our blooming males?

Are we a nation of just co-eds? That is a thought too sad—and too sad! Printer, set this line in double leads: Where, oh, where, is the sweet boy grad?

Editors, favor this with your gaze, Preachers, how ye and how to the haze; Poets, have done with your life ways; Thinkers, come think on this thought of mine!

Nothing's so sweet as a sweet girl grad; That is a patent as patent can be—What has become of the s. b. g.?
